

PREPARED SPECIFICALLY FOR: Mary Ellen's Bail Bonds

Mary Ellen, Sherri, and Chris — your 4.9 is built on one thing: a Pollack answering the phone. Forty years, eight counties, and a national TV run — but the reviews say the same thing every time: Reviewers say it — "I spoke with Sheri.. she is so kind." So here's the question nobody asks: what happens to review #64 when Sherri's at the jail and the call rolls to a recording? The Premium Line isn't automation — it's the bridge TO Sherri. It answers warm, captures everything, and Sherri calls back within 15 minutes. The caller never knows the difference until the callback.

THE PROBLEM

At 2 a.m. nobody leaves a voicemail.

The family hangs up mid-ring and dials the next listing in Google — their own reviews admit it: "I called five bondsmen before..."

That's not a missed call. That's a missed premium, lost revenue.

FIELD REPORT — WE CALLED

Another Brighton agency — 5:03 a.m., 8/8/2026: "We are closed. Leave a message." They're losing callers every night — and don't even know it.

A second Brighton agency — 5:11 a.m., 8/8/2026: 3 min on hold, ukulele music, then a human. Their callers hung up and kept dialing.

Nobody stays on hold for 3 minutes. They keep dialing.

THE SOLUTION — WHAT IT DOES

1. Picks up the second you can't — "Thanks for calling, I can get this to a bail agent right away."
2. Captures the intake — defendant's name, where they're being held, whether bond's been set, caller's relationship, callback number. One question at a time, calm tone.
3. Assures the caller a licensed agent will call back in 15 minutes (you can customize the time). It never quotes the premium, never discusses payment plans, never promises a release time.
4. Texts you the Intake Info the moment the caller hangs up.

A caller hearing that reassuring 15-minute promise at 2 a.m. does the following:

1. Instantly relaxes
2. They put their phone down!

WHAT YOU GET AFTER EACH CALL: THE INTAKE INFO. & CALL DATA

In addition to the Intake Info., the text will include:

caller's name · callback number · call duration · link to the full transcript and recording

WHAT IT WILL NEVER DO

- Quote the premium or discuss any other financial topic
- Promise a specific release time
- Give legal advice of any kind
- Sound cheerful or scripted when the caller's stressed
